PART II

CLASSIFICATION OF OFFENCES: APPLICATION OF CRIMINAL LAW: PARTIES TO OFFENCES: ATTEMPTS ETC TO COMMIT OFFENCES

Constitution and classification of offences

Definition of offence

12 Any act or omission which is punishable by or under any provision of law constitutes an offence; and any such act or omission is referred to as an offence, and cognate expressions shall be construed accordingly.

Jurisdiction in respect of various offences

13 (1) Unless otherwise expressly provided in any law, a person accused of an indictable offence cannot be prosecuted or convicted in respect of it except upon indictment.

(2) A person accused of a summary offence may only be prosecuted or convicted in respect of it before a court of summary jurisdiction:

Provided that, if a person is charged with two or more offences one of which is an indictable offence, then if that indictable offence is to be dealt with on indictment and the other offence or offences are such as might be joined in the same indictment with such indictable offence, that person may be prosecuted and convicted on indictment in respect of all or any of the offences with which he stands charged.

Classification of unclassified indictable offences constituted by other Acts

14 Where by or under any other Act any indictable offence is constituted, and it is not stated whether the offence is a felony or a misdemeanour, then that offence shall, for the purposes of the application of the general provisions of this Act relating to offences and criminal procedure, be deemed to be a misdemeanour.

Application of criminal law

Application of general provisions of this Act

15 The general provisions of this Act relating to offences and criminal procedure shall apply, unless it is otherwise expressly provided, in relation to offences constituted or punishable by or under any other Act as well as in relation to the offences specifically constituted by and punishable under this Act.

16 [Section 16 repealed by 2005:15 s.3 effective 1 April 2006]

Restriction on liability to trial and punishment in Bermuda for indictable offences

17 No person shall be liable to be tried or punished in Bermuda, as for an indictable offence, except under the express provisions of this Act or of some other Act, or under the express provisions of an Act of the Parliament of the United Kingdom—

- (a) which is expressly applied to Bermuda; or
- (b) which is in force in all parts of Her Majesty's dominions; or
- (c) which authorizes the trial and punishment in Bermuda of offenders who have at places out of Bermuda committed offences against the laws of the United Kingdom.

Effect of changes in law

18 (1) A person cannot be punished for doing an act or making an omission unless the act or omission constituted an offence under the law in force when it occurred; nor unless doing the act or making the omission under the same circumstances would constitute an offence under the law in force at the time when he is charged with the offence.

(2) If the law in force when the act or omission occurred differs from that in force at the time of conviction, the offender cannot be punished to any greater extent—

- (a) than was authorized by the former law; or
- (b) than is authorized by the latter law.

Trial in certain cases of homicide

19 If any person is unlawfully hurt upon the sea, or at any place out of Bermuda, and dies in consequence thereof in Bermuda, or if any person is unlawfully hurt in Bermuda, and dies in consequence thereof upon the sea, or at any place out of Bermuda, then every such offence, whether the offence amounts to murder or manslaughter, or being accessory to murder or manslaughter, may be dealt with in Bermuda in the same manner in all respects as if such offence had been committed wholly in Bermuda.

Offences procured or counselled by persons out of Bermuda

20 (1) Any person who, having while out of Bermuda procured another person to do an act or make an omission in Bermuda of such nature that, if he had himself done the Act or made the omission in Bermuda, he would have been guilty of an offence, afterwards comes into Bermuda, is by such coming into Bermuda guilty of an offence of the same kind, and is liable to the same punishment, as if he had himself done the act or made the omission in Bermuda.

(2) Any person who, having while out of Bermuda counselled or procured the commission of an offence which is actually committed in Bermuda, afterwards comes into Bermuda, is by such coming into Bermuda guilty of an offence of the same kind, and is liable to the same punishment, as if he had been in Bermuda when the offence was committed.

Offences procured in Bermuda to be committed out of Bermuda

21 (1) Any person who while in Bermuda procures to another person to do an act or make an omission at a place out of Bermuda of such a nature that, if he had himself done the act or made the omission in Bermuda, he would have been guilty of an offence, and that, if he had himself done the act or made the omission, he would have been guilty of an offence under the laws in force in the place where the act or omission is done or made, is guilty of an offence of the same kind, and is liable to the same punishment, as if the act had been done or the omission had been made in Bermuda, but so that the punishment does not exceed that which he would have incurred under the laws in force in the place where the act was done or the omission was made, if he had himself done the act or made the omission.

(2) A prosecution cannot be instituted under this section except at the request of the Government of the State having jurisdiction in the place where the act or omission occurs.

Offender may be prosecuted under this Act or some other Act.

22 When an offender is punishable under this Act, and also under some other Act, he may be prosecuted and convicted under this Act or such other Act, so, however, that he is not twice punished for the same act or omission.

Persons not to be twice punished for same offence

23 A person cannot be twice punished either under this Act or under any other law for the same act or omission, unless the act or omission is such that by means thereof he causes the death of another person, in which case he may be convicted of the offence of which he is guilty by reason of causing such death, notwithstanding that he has already been convicted of some other offence constituted by the act or omission.

Former conviction or acquittal

24 It is a defence to a charge of any offence to show that the accused person has already been tried, and convicted or acquitted, before a court of competent jurisdiction, upon indictment or information, in respect of an offence of which he might have been convicted of the offence with which he is charged.

Relation of civil actions to criminal law

Civil remedies

25 (1) When by this Act any act is declared to be lawful, no action can be brought in respect thereof:

Provided that nothing in Part XII shall affect any right of action arising from the publication of any defamatory matter which any person would have had against another person if that Part had not been enacted.

(2) Except as aforesaid, this Act shall not affect any right of action which any person would have had against another person if this Act had not been passed, nor shall the omission from this Act of any penal provision in respect of an act or omission which before 1 September 1908 constituted an actionable wrong affect any right of action in respect thereof.

(3) Except when expressly so provided, the prosecution or conviction of a person for an offence does not affect any civil remedy which any person aggrieved by the offence may have against the offender.

Effect of conviction in respect of offence relating to property on civil proceedings etc

26 (1) A person who has been summarily convicted of any offence relating to property under this Act, and who has paid the fine or sum adjudged to be paid under the conviction, together with the costs, if any, or has suffered the imprisonment adjudged in the first instance, or has received the Royal Mercy, or has been discharged without punishment upon making satisfaction to the party aggrieved, or whose sentence has been conditionally suspended, is not liable to any civil proceedings for the same cause at the suit of the person on whose information he was convicted.

(2) If civil proceedings have been taken against any person in respect of any act done by him which is an offence of the nature hereinbefore described, he cannot afterwards be prosecuted for the same cause, as for an offence, on the information of the person by whom the civil proceedings were taken.

Parties to offences

Principal offenders

27 (1) When an offence is committed, each of the following persons is deemed to have taken part in committing the offence, and to be guilty of the offence, and may be charged with actually committing it—

- (a) every person who actually does the act or makes the omission which constitutes the offence;
- (b) every person who does any act or makes any omission for the purpose of enabling or aiding another person to commit the offence;
- (c) every person who aids another person in committing the offence; and
- (d) any person who counsels or procures any other person to commit the offence.

(2) In the circumstances mentioned in subsection (1) (d) the person may be charged either with committing the offence himself or with counselling or procuring its commission.

(3) A person convicted of counselling or procuring an offence shall be liable to the same consequences in all respects as if he had been convicted of committing the offence.

(4) Any person who procures another person to do any act or make any omission of such a nature that, if he had himself done the act or made the omission, the act or omission would have constituted an offence on his part, is guilty of an offence of the same kind, and is liable to the same punishment, as if he had done the act or made the omission; and he may be charged with doing the act or making the omission.

Offences committed in prosecution of common purpose

28 When two or more persons form a common intention to prosecute an unlawful purpose in conjunction with one another, and in the prosecution of such purpose an offence is committed of such a nature that its commission was a probable consequence of the prosecution of such purpose, then each of such persons is deemed to have committed the offence.

Mode of execution immaterial

29 (1) When a person counsels another person to commit an offence, and an offence is actually committed after such counsel by the person to whom it is given, it is immaterial whether the offence actually committed is the same as that counselled or a different one, or whether the offence is committed in a different way, if in either case the facts constituting the offence actually committed are a probable consequence of carrying out the counsel.

(2) In either case the person who gave the counsel is deemed to have counselled the other person to commit the offence actually committed by him.

Accessories after the fact

30 (1) A person who receives, relieves or assists another person who has to his knowledge committed a felony or misdemeanour in order to enable him to escape punishment becomes an accessory after the fact to the felony or misdemeanour.

(2) A married woman does not become an accessory after the fact to a felony or misdemeanour which her husband has committed by receiving, relieving or assisting her husband in order to enable him to escape punishment; nor by receiving, relieving or assisting, in her husband's presence and by his authority, another person who has committed an offence in the commission of which her husband has taken part, in order to enable that other person to escape punishment.

Attempts and incitements to commit offences

Elements of attempt to commit offence

31 (1) When a person, intending to commit an offence, begins to put his intention into execution by means adapted to its fulfilment, and manifests his intention by some overt act, but does not fulfil his intention to such an extent as to commit the offence, he is said to attempt to commit the offence.

(2) It is immaterial, whether the offender does all that is necessary on his part for completing the commission of the offence, or whether the complete fulfilment of his intention is prevented by circumstances independent of his will, or whether he desists of his own motion from the further prosecution of his intention.

(3) It is immaterial that by reason of circumstances not known to the offender it is impossible in fact to commit the offence.

(4) The same facts may constitute one offence and an attempt to commit another offence.

Attempt to commit offence

32 (1) Any person who attempts to commit any indictable offence is guilty of an indictable offence, which, unless otherwise stated, is a misdemeanour.

(2) When a person who commits an indictable offence is punishable on summary conviction, a person who attempts to commit such an offence may also be summarily convicted.

(3) Any person who attempts to commit an offence which is punishable on summary conviction is guilty of an offence which is punishable on summary conviction.

(4) If, upon the trial of any person for an attempt to commit an offence, it is established that the complete offence was committed, such person shall not by reason thereof be entitled to be acquitted of such attempt, and may be convicted of such attempt, but he shall not be liable to be prosecuted thereafter for the complete offence in respect of the same facts.

Attempt to procure etc commission of offence

PART III

CRIMINAL RESPONSIBILITY

Application of Part III

34 This Part shall apply to all persons charged with any offence against a statutory provision.

Ignorance of law no excuse

35 (1) Ignorance of the law does not afford any excuse for any act or omission which would otherwise constitute an offence, unless knowledge of the law by the offender is expressly declared to be an element of the offence.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in subsection (1) a person is not criminally responsible, as for an offence relating to property, for an act done or omitted to be done by him with respect to any property in the exercise of an honest claim of right and without intention to defraud.

Accident etc

36 (1) Subject to the express provisions of this Act relating to negligent acts and omissions, a person is not criminally responsible for an act or omission which occurs independently of the exercise of his will, or for an event which occurs by accident.

(2) Unless the intention to cause a particular result is expressly declared to be an element of the offence constituted, in whole or part, by an act or omission, the result intended to be caused by an act or omission is immaterial.

Motive

37 Unless otherwise expressly declared, the motive by which a person is induced to do an act or to make an omission, or to form an intention, is immaterial so far as regards criminal responsibility.

Mistake of fact

38 Without prejudice to any provision of law to the contrary, any person who does any act or makes any omission under an honest and reasonable, but mistaken, belief in the existence of any state of things is not criminally responsible for the act or omission to any greater extent than if the real state of things had been such as he believed to exist.

Extraordinary emergencies

39 Subject to the express provisions of this Act relating to acts done or omissions made upon compulsion or provocation or in self-defence, a person is not criminally responsible for an act or omission done or made under such circumstances of sudden or extraordinary emergency that an ordinary person possessing ordinary powers of self-control could not reasonably be expected to act otherwise.

Presumption of sanity

40 Every person is presumed to be of sound mind, and to have been of sound mind at any time which comes in question, until the contrary is proved.

Insanity

41 (1) A person is not criminally responsible for an act or omission if at the time of doing the act or making the omission he is in such a state of mental disease or natural mental infirmity as to deprive him—

- (a) of capacity to understand what he is doing; or
- (b) of capacity to control his actions; or
- (c) of capacity to know that he ought not to do the act or make the omission.

(2) A person whose mind, at the time of his doing an act or making an omission, is affected by delusions on some specific matter or matters, but who is not otherwise entitled to the benefit of subsection (1), is criminally responsible for the act or omission to the same extent as if the real state of things had been such as he was induced by the delusions to believe to exist.

Intoxication

42 (1) Section 41 shall apply and have effect in relation to any person whose mind is disordered by intoxication—

- (a) where the intoxication is caused by the administration of any intoxicating liquor, drug or other thing whatsoever in circumstances—
 - (i) where the administration occurred without the consent of the person to whom such liquor, drug or other thing was administered; or
 - (ii) where the person to whom such liquor, drug or other thing was administered did not know or had no reason to believe that intoxication could result from such administration; or
- (b) where the intoxication results from the due carrying out of a bona fide course of medical treatment.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1) it is immaterial whether the intoxication is caused by the administration of the intoxicating liquor, drugs or other thing whatsoever to the person who so became intoxicated by himself or by any other person.

(3) The onus of proving that anything in subsection (1) applies in relation to any particular person at any particular time shall be upon the person who alleges that the said provision so applies.

Intention in relation to intoxication

43 Where an intention to cause a specific result is an element of an offence, then intoxication of any person charged with that offence shall be taken into account for the purpose of determining whether or not he had such an intention.

Immature age

44 (1) A person under the age of eight years is not criminally responsible for any act or omission.

(2) A person under the age of fourteen years is not criminally responsible for an act or omission, unless it is proved that at the time of doing the act or making the omission he had capacity to know that he ought not to do the act or make the omission.

(3) It shall be conclusively presumed that a male child under the age of fourteen years cannot have carnal knowledge.

Judicial officers

45 Except where otherwise expressly provided by any provision of law, a judicial officer is not criminally responsible for any act done or omission made by him in the exercise of his judicial functions, although the act done is in excess of his judicial authority or although he is required to do the act which he has omitted to do.

CRIMINAL CODE ACT 1907

Acts done in execution etc of provision of law

46 (1) A person is not criminally responsible for an act or omission where he does the act or makes the omission—

- (a) in due execution of any provision of law; or
- (b) in due obedience to the order of a competent authority which he is required to obey by or under any provision of law, unless such order is manifestly unlawful.

(2) Whether an order is or is not manifestly unlawful is declared to be a question of law.

Acts done in resistance to violence

47 Without prejudice to any other provision of this Act, a person is not criminally responsible for an act or omission where the act or omission is reasonably necessary for the purpose of resisting actual violence threatened to him or to another person in his presence:

Provided that the foregoing provisions of this section shall not have effect so as to justify or excuse—

- (a) [Deleted by 1999:51]
- (b) an act or omission which constitutes an offence of which causing grievous bodily harm to the person of another, or an intention to cause such grievous bodily harm, is an element.

[Section 47 amended by 1999:51 s.4 & Sch effective 23 December 1999]

Acts done for purpose of self-preservation

48 Without prejudice to any other provision of this Act, a person is not criminally responsible for an act or omission where he does the act or makes the omission for the purpose of saving himself from immediate death or grievous bodily harm threatened to be inflicted upon him by some person actually present and in a position to execute the threats, and believing himself to be unable otherwise to escape the carrying of the threats into execution:

Provided that the foregoing provisions of this section shall not have effect so as to justify or excuse—

- (a) [Deleted by 1999:51]
- (b) in the case of a person threatened with grievous bodily harm, an act or omission which constitutes an offence of which causing grievous bodily harm to the person of another, or an intention to cause such grievous bodily harm, is an element; or
- (c) an act done, or an omission made, by a person who has by entering into an unlawful association or conspiracy rendered himself liable to have such threats made to him.

[Section 48 amended by 1999:51 s.4 & Sch effective 23 December 1999]

CRIMINAL CODE ACT 1907

Compulsion of husband

49 (1) A married woman is not relieved of responsibility for an act or omission solely because the act is done or, as the case may be, the omission is made, in the presence of her husband.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in subsection (1) a married woman is not criminally responsible for an act or omission—

- (a) which she is actually compelled by her husband to do or make; and
- (b) which is done or made in his presence, except an act or omission which would constitute murder, in which case the presence of her husband is immaterial.

[Section 49 amended by 1999:51 s.4 & Sch effective 23 December 1999; subsection (2) amended by 2014 : 14 s. 4 effective 19 September 2014]

- (a) except in the case of an act or omission of which an intention to injure or defraud some other person is an element; and
- (b) except in the case of an act done by either of them when leaving or deserting, or when about to leave or desert, the other.

(2) Subject to subsection (1), a husband and wife are, each of them, criminally responsible for any act or omission made with respect to the property of the other, which would be an offence if they were not husband and wife, and to the same extent as if they were not husband and wife:

Provided that neither of them can institute criminal proceedings against the other with respect to property while they are living together.

(3) In this section "property", used with respect to a wife, means her separate property.

Offences by partners and members of companies with respect to partnership or corporate property.

52 Any person who, being a member of a partnership, corporation or any association recognized as a company by the Companies Act 1981 [title 17 item 5] does any act or makes any omission with respect to the property of the partnership, corporation or company which, if he were not a member of the partnership, corporation or company, would constitute an offence, is criminally responsible to the same extent as if he were not such member.

- (a) the court shall request that evidence be adduced as to the existence of the fact unless the court is satisfied that sufficient evidence was adduced at the trial;
- (b) the party wishing to rely on a relevant fact, including a fact contained in a presentence report, has the burden of proving it;

- (b) shall consider, if the Director of Public Prosecutions and the offender consent, any outstanding charges that the court has jurisdiction to try against the offender to which the offender consents to plead guilty and pleads guilty, and shall determine the sentence to be imposed for each charge unless the court is of the opinion that a separate prosecution for any of the outstanding charges is necessary in the public interest; and

- (c) may consider any facts forming part of the circumstances of the offence that could constitute the basis for a separate charge.
- (2) The court shall, on the information or indictment, note—
 - (a) any outstanding charges considered in determining the sentence under paragraph (1)(b); and
 - (b) any facts considered under paragraph (1)(c) in determining the sentence under that paragraph,

and no further proceedings may be taken with respect to any offence described in those charges or disclosed by those facts unless the conviction for the offence of which the offender has been found guilty is set aside or quashed on appeal.

(2) Where bodily harm is caused to any person as a result of the commission of an offence or the arrest or attempted arrest of the offender, the court may make a reparation order requiring the offender, to pay to that person out of pocket expenses directly incurred as a result of the bodily harm.

- (b) it appears to the court that the offender would not have the means or ability to comply with both an order for reparation and an order to pay the fine, the court shall first make the order of reparation and shall then consider whether and to what extent an order to pay a fine is appropriate in the circumstances.

(11) Where both reparation and a fine are ordered, payments will be applied first to reparation and secondly towards the fine.

(12) All or any part of any amount that is ordered to be paid by way of reparation under subsection (1) or (2) may be taken out of monies found in the possession of the offender at the time of his arrest if the court is satisfied that ownership of or right to possession of those moneys is not disputed by claimants other than the offender.

(5) Where an offender whose term of imprisonment has been suspended under this section is convicted of a further offence which is committed during the operational period and for which he is sentenced to imprisonment, the court which sentences the offender for the further offence shall order that the suspended sentence shall take effect unless it is of the opinion that it is unjust to do so in view of all the circumstances which have arisen since the suspended sentence was imposed, including the further offence.

(6) Where a court decides under subsection (5) that it would be unjust for a suspended sentence to take effect, the court shall—

(a) order that the suspended sentence—

- (i) take effect with a substitution of a lesser term of imprisonment; or
- (ii) be cancelled and be replaced by any non-custodial sentence that could have been imposed on the offender at the time when the offender was convicted of the offence for which the suspended sentence was imposed; or

(b) decline to make any order referred to in paragraph (a) concerning the suspended sentence.

(7) Where pursuant to subsection (5) or subsection (6) a court orders that the suspended sentence shall take effect, the sentence shall commence on the date of the making of that order.

(8) Where a court imposes a suspended sentence for one offence, the court may also impose suspended sentences under subsection (1) for other offences for which the offender has appeared for sentence, so long as the total period of all suspended sentences to which the offender is subject does not exceed 5 years from the date of the commencement of the first such sentence, and, where two or more suspended sentences are imposed on an offender, the sentences shall be served concurrently.

(9) For the purposes of any Act conferring rights of appeal in criminal cases any order made by a court under this section shall be treated as a sentence passed on the offender by that court for the offence for which the suspended sentence was passed.

(2) When such an act or insult is done or offered by one person to another, or in the presence of another to a person who is under the immediate care of that other, or to whom the latter stands in any such relation as aforesaid, the former is said to give to the latter provocation for an assault.

(3) A lawful act is not provocation to any person for an assault.

Self-defence against provoked assault

Provided that the foregoing provisions of this section shall not have effect so as to excuse or justify—

- (a) the use by any person of force which causes death or grievous bodily harm where such person first began the assault with intent to kill or to do grievous bodily harm to some other person; or
- (b) the use by any person of force which causes death or grievous bodily harm where such person endeavoured to kill or cause grievous bodily harm to some other person before the necessity of so preserving himself arose; or

[Section 289 amended by 1999:51 s.4 & Sch effective 23 December 1999; amended by 2014 : 14 s. 4 effective 19 September 2014]

Manslaughter

Constitution of offence of manslaughter

293 A person who unlawfully kills another person under such circumstances as not to constitute murder is guilty of manslaughter.

Manslaughter by negligence

294 Notwithstanding anything in section 293 or in those provisions of Part XV which impose duties relating to the preservation of human life, and without prejudice to anything in section 287 or in section 299 (which relate, respectively, to murder and infanticide), where a person is by operation of law deemed to have unlawfully caused the death of another person by reason only of doing an act or of making an omission, (being an act or omission which constitutes a failure to observe or perform a duty imposed upon him by the said provisions of Part XV) that person shall not be guilty of the offence of manslaughter unless the breach of duty involved in the act or omission whereby the death of that person was caused was such as to involve gross negligence or a reckless disregard of the life, safety or health of other persons.

Killing on provocation

295 Subject as hereinafter provided, when a person who unlawfully kills another person under circumstances which, but for the this section, would constitute murder, does the act which causes death in the heat of passion caused by sudden provocation and before there is time for his passion to cool, he is guilty of manslaughter only:

Provided that the foregoing provisions of this section shall have no effect so as to reduce an unlawful killing to manslaughter where the force used or the mode of retaliation is not reasonably proportionate to the provocation given.

Killing by use of excessive force where some force is lawful

296 An unlawful killing by a person of another person is manslaughter and not murder if the offender while in the exercise in good faith of any right to use force against another person uses more force than that allowed to him by law in relation to the exercise of that right and causes the death of the person against whom the force is used without premeditation and without any intention of doing more bodily harm than he honestly believes is necessary for the purpose of exercising that right.

Suicide pacts

297 (1) It is manslaughter and not murder for a person acting in pursuance of a suicide pact between him and another to kill the other or be a party to the killing himself or being killed by a third person.

(2) Where it is shown that a person charged with the murder of another killed the other or was a party to his killing himself or being killed, it shall be for the defence to prove that the person charged was acting in pursuance of a suicide pact between him and the other.

(3) For the purpose of this section "suicide pact" means a common agreement between two or more persons having for its object the death of all of them, whether or not each is to take his own life, but nothing done by a person who enters into a suicide pact shall be treated as done by him in pursuance of the pact unless it is done while he has the settled intention of dying in pursuance of the pact.

Defence of diminished responsibility

297A (1) Where a person unlawfully kills or is a party to that killing of another, he shall not be convicted of murder if he was suffering from such abnormality of mind (whether arising from a condition of arrested or retarded development of mind or any inherent causes or induced by disease or injury) as substantially impaired his mental responsibility for his acts and omissions in doing or being a party to the killing.

(2) On a charge of murder, it shall be for the defence to prove that the person charged is by virtue of this section not liable to be convicted of that offence.

(3) A person who but for this section would be liable, whether as principal or as accessory, to be convicted of murder shall be liable instead to be convicted of manslaughter.

(4) The fact that one party to a killing is by virtue of this section not liable to be convicted of murder shall not affect the question whether the killing amounted to either of those offences in the case of any other party to it.

[Section 297A subsections (1) - (4) amended by 2014 : 14 s. 4 effective 19 September 2014]

- (a) may be convicted of the offence of preventing such child from being born alive by an act or omission of such a nature that, if the child had been born alive and had then died, he would be deemed to have unlawfully killed the child; or
- (b) may be convicted of the offence of endeavouring by a secret disposition of the dead body of such child to conceal its birth, if either of those offences is established by the evidence; and a person convicted under any of the foregoing provisions of this subsection is liable to the same punishment as if he had been convicted on an indictment charging him with the offence of which he is actually convicted.

- (a) by reason of her not having fully recovered from the effect of giving birth to the child; or
- (b) by reason of the effect of lactation consequent upon the birth of the child, then, notwithstanding that the circumstances were such that but for this section the offence would have amounted to murder, she shall be guilty of a felony called infanticide, and may for such offence be dealt with and punished as if she had been guilty of the manslaughter of the child.

(2) Where upon the trial of a woman or girl for the murder of her child (being a child under the age of twelve months) the jury are of opinion that she by any wilful act or omission caused the death of the child, but that at the time of the act or omission the balance of her mind was disturbed—

- (a) by reason of her not having fully recovered from the effect of giving birth to the child; or
- (b) by reason of the effect of lactation consequent upon the birth of the child, then the jury may, notwithstanding that the circumstances were such that but for this section they might have returned a verdict of murder, return in lieu thereof a verdict of infanticide.

(3) Nothing in this section shall have effect so as to affect the powers of the jury upon indictment for the murder of a child—

- (a) to return a verdict of manslaughter; or
- (b) to return a verdict of acquittal on the ground of insanity; or
- (c) to return a verdict of concealment of birth in pursuance of section 288(3).

(4) The provisions of section 288(2) shall apply in the case of a woman or girl charged upon an indictment for infanticide as those provisions apply in the case of a woman or girl charged upon an indictment for murder.

(2) If, before the commencement of a trial at which a person is charged with a sexual offence, he or another person against whom the complainant may be expected to give evidence at the trial applies to a judge for a direction under this subsection and satisfies the judge—

- (a) that the direction is required for the purpose of inducing persons to come forward who are likely to be needed as witnesses at the trial; and
- (b) that the conduct of the applicant's defence or case at the trial is likely to be substantially prejudiced if the direction is not given, the judge shall direct that subsection (1) shall not, by virtue of the accusation alleging the sexual offence in question, apply in relation to the complainant.

(3) If at a trial at which a person is charged with a sexual offence the judge is satisfied—

- (a) that the effect of subsection (1) is to impose a substantial and unreasonable restriction upon the reporting of proceedings at the trial; and
- (b) that it is in the public interest that the restriction should be removed or relaxed, he shall direct that subsection (1) shall not apply to such matter relating to the complainant as is specified in the direction; but a direction shall not be given under this subsection by reason only of an acquittal of an accused at the trial.

(4) If a person who has been convicted of a sexual offence and has given notice of appeal to the Court of Appeal against the conviction, or notice of an application for leave so to appeal, applies to the Court of Appeal for a direction under this subsection and satisfies that Court—

(7) If at a preliminary inquiry, or before a trial, or during a trial, at which a person is charged with a sexual offence an accused person applies to the magistrate, a judge or the trial judge for a direction that subsection (6) shall not apply in relation to him, the magistrate or judge shall so direct unless he is satisfied that such a direction will prejudice another accused.

(8) If at the trial of a person charged with a sexual offence the judge is satisfied that the effect of subsection (6) is to impose a substantial and unreasonable restriction upon the reporting of the proceedings and that it is in the public interest that the restriction should be removed, he shall direct that subsection (6) shall not apply in relation to that person.

(9) If after the commencement of a trial at which a person is charged with a sexual offence a new trial is ordered, any direction under this section shall not have effect in respect of the new trial; and if such a direction is wished a fresh application shall be made.

(11) Nothing in this section—

- (b) affects any prohibition or restriction imposed by virtue of any other enactment upon a publication or broadcast.

Interpretation

330 (1) Sections 334(1) and 335(1) shall apply generally for purposes of this Chapter as they apply for purposes of section 331.

(2) For purposes of this Chapter—

“gain” and “loss” are to be construed as extending only to gain or loss in money or other property, but as extending to any such gain or loss whether temporary or permanent; and—

- (a) “gain” includes a gain by keeping what one has, as well as a gain by getting what one has not; and
- (b) “loss” includes a loss by not getting what one might get, as well as a loss by parting with what one has;
- (c) “goods”, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, includes money and every other description of property except land, and includes things severed from the land by stealing;

Definition of “Theft”

Basic definition of theft

331 (1) A person is guilty of theft if he dishonestly appropriates property belonging to another with the intention of permanently depriving the other of it; and “thief” and “steal” shall be construed accordingly.

(2) It is immaterial whether the appropriation is made with a view to gain or is made for the thief’s own benefit.

(3) The five following sections shall have effect as regards the interpretation and operation of this section (and, except as otherwise provided by this Act, shall apply only for the purposes of this section).

“Dishonestly”

332 (1) A person’s appropriation of property belonging to another is not to be regarded as dishonest—

- (a) if he appropriates the property in the belief that he has in law the right to deprive the other of it, on behalf of himself or of a third person; or
- (b) if he appropriates the property in the belief that he would have the other’s consent if the other knew of the appropriation and the circumstances of it; or
- (c) (except where the property came to him as trustee or personal representative) if he appropriates the property in the belief that the person to whom the property belongs cannot be discovered by taking reasonable steps.

(2) A person's appropriation of property belonging to another may be dishonest notwithstanding that he is willing to pay for the property.

“Appropriates”

333 (1) Any assumption by a person of the rights of an owner amounts to an appropriation, and this includes, where he has come by the property (innocently or not) without stealing it any later assumption of a right to it by keeping or dealing with it as owner.

(2) Where property or a right or interest in property is or purports to be transferred for value to a person acting in good faith, no later assumption by him of rights which he believed himself to be acquiring shall, by reason of any defect in the transferor's title, amount to theft of the property.

“Property”

334 (1) Property includes money and all other property, real or personal, including things in action and other intangible property.

(2) A person cannot steal land, or things forming part of land and severed from it by him or by his directions, except in the following cases, that is to say—

- (a) when he is a trustee or personal representative, or is authorised by power of attorney, or as liquidator of a company, or otherwise, to sell or dispose of land belonging to another, and he appropriates the land or anything forming part of it by dealing with it in breach of the confidence reposed in him; or
- (b) when he is not in possession of the land and appropriates anything forming part of the land by severing it or causing it to be severed, or after it has been severed; or
- (c) when, being in possession of the land under a tenancy, he appropriates the whole or part of any fixture or structure let to be used with the land.

(3) A person who picks flowers, fruit or foliage from a plant growing wild on any land, does not (although not in possession of the land) steal what he picks, unless he does it for reward or for sale or other commercial purpose.

(4) Wild creatures, tamed or untamed, shall be regarded as property; but a person cannot steal a wild creature not tamed nor ordinarily kept in captivity, or the carcase of any such creature, unless either it has been reduced into possession by or on behalf of another person and possession of it has not since been lost or abandoned, or another person is in course of reducing it into possession.

(5) For purposes of this section—

“land” does not include incorporeal hereditaments;

“plant” includes any shrub or tree;

“tenancy” means a tenancy for years or any less period and includes an agreement for such a tenancy, but a person who after the end of a tenancy remains in possession [as statutory tenant] or otherwise is to be treated as having possession under the tenancy, and “let” shall be construed accordingly.

“Belonging to another”

335 (1) Property shall be regarded as belonging to any person having possession or control of it, or having in it any proprietary right or interest (not being an equitable interest arising only from an agreement to transfer or grant an interest).

(2) Where property is subject to a trust, the persons to whom it belongs shall be regarded as including any person having a right to enforce the trust, and an intention to defeat the trust shall be regarded accordingly as an intention to deprive of the property any person having that right.

(3) Where a person receives property from or on account of another, and is under an obligation to the other to retain and deal with that property or its proceeds in a particular way, the property or proceeds shall be regarded (as against him) as belonging to the other.

(4) Where a person gets property by another’s mistake, and is under an obligation to make restoration (in whole or in part) of the property or its proceeds or of the value thereof, then to the extent of that obligation the property or proceeds shall be regarded (as against him) as belonging to the person entitled to restoration, and an intention not to make restoration shall be regarded accordingly as an intention to deprive that person of the property or proceeds.

(5) Property of a corporation sole shall be regarded as belonging to the corporation notwithstanding a vacancy in the corporation.

“With the intention of permanently depriving the other of it”

336 (1) A person appropriating property belonging to another without meaning the other permanently to lose the thing itself is nevertheless to be regarded as having the intention of permanently depriving the other of it if his intention is to treat the thing as his own to dispose of regardless of the other’s rights; and a borrowing or lending of it may amount to so treating it if but only if the borrowing or lending is for a period and in circumstances making it equivalent to an outright taking or disposal.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of subsection (1) where a person, having possession or control (lawfully or not) of property belonging to another, parts with the property under a condition as to its return which he may not be able to perform, this (if done for purposes of his own and without the other’s authority) amounts to treating the property as his own to dispose of regardless of the other’s rights.

Formal defects in indictment

488 (1) An indictment is not open to objection by reason of the designation of any person by a name of office or other descriptive appellation instead of by his proper name, nor for omitting to state the time at which the offence was committed, unless the time is an essential element of the offence, nor for stating imperfectly the time at which the offence was committed, nor for stating the offence to have been committed on an impossible day, or on a day that never happened or has not yet happened.

(2) An objection to an indictment or to a count in an indictment, for a defect apparent on its face, shall be taken by motion to quash the indictment or count before the accused person enters a plea, and, after the accused person has entered a plea, only by leave of the court before which the proceedings take place.

Orders for amendment of indictment, separate trial and postponement of trial

489A (1) Where, before trial, or at any stage of a trial, it appears to the court that the indictment is defective, the court shall make such order for the amendment of the indictment as the court thinks necessary to meet the circumstances of the case, unless, having regard to the merits of the case, the required amendments cannot be made without causing injustice.

(2) Where an indictment is so amended, a note of the order for amendment shall be endorsed on the indictment, and the indictment shall be treated for the purposes of the trial and for the purposes of all proceedings in connection therewith as being in the amended form.

(3) Where, before trial, or at any stage of a trial, the court is of the opinion that an accused person may be prejudiced or embarrassed in his defence by reason of being charged with more than one offence in the same indictment, or that for any other reason it is desirable to direct that the accused person should be tried separately for any one or more offences charged in an indictment, the court may order a separate trial of any count or counts of such indictment.

(4) Where, before trial, or at any stage of a trial, the court is of opinion that the postponement of the trial of an accused person is expedient as a consequence of the exercise of any power of the court under this Act to amend an indictment or to order a separate trial of a count, the court shall make such order as to the postponement of the trial as appears necessary.

(5) Where an order of the court is made under this section for a separate trial or for the postponement of a trial—

- (a) if such an order is made during a trial the court may order that the jury are to be discharged from giving a verdict on the count or counts the trial of which is postponed or on the indictment, as the case may be; and
- (b) the procedure on the separate trial of a count shall be the same in all respects as if the count had been found in a separate indictment, and the procedure on the postponed trial shall be the same in all respects (if the jury has been discharged) as if the trial had not commenced; and
- (c) the court may make such order as to granting the accused person bail and as to the enlargement of recognizances and otherwise as the court thinks fit.

(6) The court may make an order under this section that takes effect either at a specified later date or on the occurrence of a specified event if, taking into account, among other considerations, the need to ensure consistent decisions, it is satisfied that it is in the interests of justice to do so.

(7) Unless the court is satisfied that it would not be in the interests of justice, any decision under section 446D (pre-trial rulings) which is made before any order issued under this section takes effect continues to bind the parties if the decisions are made or could have been made before the stage at which the evidence at trial is presented.

(8) Any power of the court under this section shall be in addition to and not in derogation of any other power of the court for the same or similar purposes.

(9) If it becomes necessary to draw up a formal record where an amendment has been made, the record shall be drawn up setting out the indictment as amended, and without taking any notice of the fact of the amendment having been made.

Commencement of trial; arraignment

503 (1) At the time appointed for the trial of an accused person, he shall be informed in open court of the offence with which he is charged, as set forth in the indictment, and shall be called upon to plead to the indictment, and to say whether he is guilty or not guilty of the charge.

(2) The trial is deemed to begin when he is so called upon.

Procedure on charge of offence against a company

(2) Provision may be made by rules with respect to the service on any company charged with an offence of any documents required to be served in connection with the proceedings.

(3) In this section the expression "representative" in relation to a company means a person duly appointed by the company to represent it for the purpose of doing any act or thing which the representative of a company is by this section authorized to do, but a person so appointed shall not, by virtue only of being so appointed, be qualified to act on behalf of the company before any court for any other purpose.

Motion to quash indictment

504 (1) The accused person may before pleading apply to the Supreme Court to quash the indictment on the ground that it is calculated to prejudice or embarrass him in his defence to the charge, or that it is formally defective.

(2) Upon such motion the Supreme Court may quash the indictment, or may order it to be amended in such manner as the Court thinks just, or may refuse the motion.

Misnomer

505 If the accused person says that he is wrongly named in the indictment, the Supreme Court may, on being satisfied by affidavit or otherwise of the error, order the indictment to be amended.

Pleas

506 (1) If the accused person does not apply to quash the indictment, he must either plead to it, or demur to it on the ground that it does not disclose any offence cognizable by the Supreme Court.

(2) If the accused person pleads, he may plead—

- (a) that he is guilty of the offence charged in the indictment, or, with, the consent of the Crown, of any other offence of which he might be convicted upon the indictment;
- (b) that he is not guilty;
- (c) that he has already been convicted upon an indictment on which he might have been convicted of the offence with which he is charged, or has already been convicted of an offence of which he might be convicted upon the indictment;
- (d) that he has already been acquitted upon an indictment on which he might have been convicted of the offence with which he is charged, or has already been acquitted upon indictment of an offence of which he might be convicted upon the indictment;
- (e) that he has already been tried and convicted or acquitted of an offence committed or alleged to be committed under such circumstances that he cannot under this Act be tried for the offence charged in the indictment;
- (f) that he has received the Royal Pardon for the offence charged in the indictment;
- (g) that the court has no jurisdiction to try him for the offence.

(3) Two or more pleas may be pleaded together, except that the plea of guilty cannot be pleaded with any other plea to the same charge.

(4) An accused person may plead and demur together.

Plea of autrefois convict or acquit

507 In a plea that the accused person has already been convicted or acquitted, it is sufficient to state that he has been lawfully convicted, or acquitted, as the case may be, of the offence charged in the indictment, or of the other offence of which he alleges that he has been convicted or acquitted, and, in the latter case, to describe the offence by any term by which it is commonly known.

Defence of truth of defamatory matter

508 A person charged with the unlawful publication of defamatory matter, who sets up as a defence that the defamatory matter is true and that it was for the public benefit that the publication should be made, must plead that matter specially, and may plead it with any other plea, except the plea of guilty.

Standing mute

509 If an accused person, on being called upon to plead to an indictment will not plead or answer directly to the indictment, the Supreme Court may, if it thinks fit, order a plea of not guilty to be entered on behalf of the accused person, and a plea so entered has the same effect as if it had been actually pleaded.

Plea to the jurisdiction of the court

510 Upon a plea to the jurisdiction of the court, the Supreme Court shall proceed to satisfy itself, in such manner and upon such evidence as it thinks fit, whether it has jurisdiction or not, and may ascertain the fact by the verdict of the jury or otherwise.

Demurrer

511 (1) When an accused person demurs only and does not plead any plea, the Supreme Court shall proceed to hear and determine the matter forthwith, and, if the demurrer is overruled, the accused person shall be called upon to plead to the indictment.

(2) When an accused person pleads and demurs together it is in the discretion of the Court whether the plea or the demurrer shall be first disposed of.

(3) No joinder in demurrer is necessary.

Trial by jury of issues raised

512 If the accused person pleads any plea or pleas other than a plea of guilty or a plea to the jurisdiction of the court, he is by such plea, without any further form, deemed to have demanded that the issues raised by such plea or pleas shall be tried by a jury, and is entitled to have them tried accordingly.

Further pleas and trial of issues

513 (1) When the issues raised by any plea or pleas, except the plea of not guilty, have been found against an accused person who has not pleaded the plea of not guilty, he is to be called upon to plead afresh, and, if those issues have been tried by a jury, the Supreme Court may direct the issues raised by any fresh plea to be tried by the same jury or by another jury.

(2) If the Court directs them to be tried by the same jury, it is not necessary that the jury should be sworn afresh, but the oath already taken by them is to be deemed to extend to the trial of such fresh issues.

Want of understanding of accused person

514 (1) If, when an accused person is called upon to plead to the indictment, it appears to be uncertain, for any reason, whether he is capable of understanding the proceedings at the trial, so as to be able to make a proper defence, the jury shall be empanelled forthwith, who shall be sworn to find whether he is capable or not.

(2) If the jury find that he is capable of understanding the proceedings, the trial shall proceed as in other cases.

(3) If the jury find that he is not so capable, the finding shall be recorded, and the Supreme Court shall order the accused person to be kept in strict custody in such place and in such manner as the Court thinks fit, until the pleasure of the Governor, acting in his discretion, is known.

(4) A person so found to be incapable of understanding the proceedings at the trial may be again called upon to plead to the indictment and to be tried for the offence.

Separate trials

515 When two or more persons are charged in the same indictment, whether with the same offence or with different offences, the Supreme Court may at any time during the trial, on the application of any of the accused persons, direct that the trial of the accused persons or any of them shall be had separately from the trial of the other or others of them, and for that purpose may, if a jury has been sworn, discharge the jury from giving a verdict as to any of the accused persons.

Qualifications and summoning of jurors

516 The law respecting the qualifications of jurors, and the summoning of jurors to attend for the trial of persons charged with indictable offences, is set forth in the Acts relating to juries and jurors.

Duty to inform accused person of right of challenge

517 When an accused person has demanded to be tried by a jury the proper officer of the Supreme Court shall inform him in open court that the persons whose names are to be called are the jurors to be sworn for his trial, and shall further inform him that if he desires to challenge any of them he must do so before they are sworn.

Drawing of juries and selection of special juries

518 (1) This section shall have effect with respect to the composition of juries empanelled to try any issue in connection with the trial of any person charged with an indictable offence.

(2) A jury required to be empanelled shall be drawn from among those members of the whole panel of jurors who are, by virtue of the provisions of the law for the time being having effect with respect to the returning of jurors, liable to serve as jurors at the session

(as defined for the purposes of the Jurors Act 1971) [title 8 item 14] during which the trial takes place, and who are liable and available to serve as jurors at that particular trial.

(3) Subject to subsection (4) and section 519, a jury shall consist of the twelve jurors whose names are first drawn and called in open court by the proper officer of the Supreme Court.

(4) If the judge considers it advisable in the interests of justice to have one, two or three alternate jurors, the judge shall order that one, two or three further names be drawn.

[Section 518 subsection (4) repealed by 2004:37 s.2 effective 17 December 2004; subsection (3) amended and subsection (4) inserted by 2015 : 37 s. 18 effective 6 November 2015]

- (a) if an offence is punishable with a mandatory life sentence of imprisonment, not more than five persons; or
- (b) in any other case, not more than three persons, drawn to serve as jurors in connection with the trial.

(1A) Where both the Crown and an accused person agree that a person drawn to serve as a juror should be excused, it shall not be considered an effective challenge and the judge shall discharge such person from serving as a juror in connection with the trial.

(2) [Repealed by 2020 : 38 s. 3]

(3) [Repealed by 2020 : 38 s. 3]

(4) The Crown or the accused person may effectively challenge for cause any person drawn to serve as a juror in connection with the trial on the ground—

- (a) that the person is not qualified by law to serve as a juror; or
- (b) that the juror is not or may not be indifferent as between the Crown and the accused person.

(5) Any challenge to a juror for cause shall be tried by the court before whom the accused person is to be tried.

(6) In any case where an effective challenge is made as aforesaid, the person effectively challenged shall be discharged from serving as a juror in connection with the trial; and accordingly, a further name shall be drawn in the manner provided in section 518(2) and (3), and the person whose name is so drawn shall, subject to effective challenge under this section, serve as a juror in the place of the person discharged.

(7) The right of challenge without cause shall be exercised by an accused personally, whether or not he is legally represented.

Time for challenging

Discharge of juror for cause subsequent to oath

Effect of death or discharge of juror during trial

525 Where after a jury has been sworn—

Presence of accused person at trial

526 (1) The trial must take place in the presence of the accused person, unless he so conducts himself as to render the continuance of the proceedings in his presence impracticable, in which case the Supreme Court may order him to be removed, and may direct the trial to proceed in his absence:

Provided that the Court may, with the consent of any person charged with a misdemeanour, if it thinks fit, permit that person to be absent during the whole or any part of the trial on such conditions as the Court thinks fit.

(2) If the accused person absents himself during the trial without leave, the Court may direct a warrant to be issued to arrest him and bring him before the Court forthwith.

530 (1) Before any evidence is given at the trial of an accused person, counsel for the prosecution is entitled to address the jury for the purpose of opening the evidence intended to be adduced for the prosecution.

(2) After the close of the evidence for the prosecution, the accused person or, if there is more than one accused person, each accused person may by himself or his counsel address the jury for the purpose of opening the evidence, if any, intended to be adduced for the defence.

(3) After the defence has adduced all the evidence, if any, it intends to adduce, and before any closing speech is made by or on behalf of an accused person under subsection (4), counsel for the prosecution may—

- (a) in respect of an accused person who is represented by counsel, make a closing speech to the jury on the case against that accused person; and
- (b) in respect of an accused person who is not represented by counsel, with the leave of the Court make a closing speech to the jury on the case against that accused person.

(4) After the prosecution has made its closing speech, if any, and regardless of whether or not any evidence is adduced for the defence, the accused person or, if there is more than one accused person, each accused person may by himself or his counsel make a closing speech to the jury.

[Section 530 repealed and replaced by 2009:5 s.2 effective 25 March 2009]

View by jury

531 (1) The Supreme Court may in any case, if it thinks fit, direct that the jury shall view any place or thing which the Court thinks it desirable that they should see, and may give any necessary directions for that purpose.

(2) The validity of the proceedings is not affected by disobedience to any such directions, but if the fact is discovered before the verdict is given, the Court, if it is of opinion that such disobedience is likely to prejudice the fair trial of the charge, may discharge the jury, and may direct that a fresh jury be sworn, or may adjourn the trial.

Separation of jury

532 The Supreme Court may, if it thinks fit, at any time before the jury consider their verdict, permit them to separate.

Incapacity of judge

533 (1) If in the course of a trial any member of the Court, whether the Chief Justice, Puisne Judge or an Assistant Justice, becomes incapable of proceeding with the trial, the remaining member or members may, in his or their absolute discretion, either proceed with the trial, or may in the manner hereinbefore provided adjourn the trial.

(2) After the Court has instructed the jury, they are to consider their verdict.

Power of Supreme Court to discharge jury

535 The Supreme Court may, if it thinks fit, in its absolute discretion discharge a jury at any time before the jury gives its verdict; and in any such case the trial shall be started afresh with a new jury; and this Part shall have effect accordingly.

(2) Where a jury have been in deliberation for not less than one hour, it shall be competent for nine or more of the jurors to find any lawful verdict and any such verdict shall have the same force and effect as if it had been found unanimously by the jury.

(3) In the event that, because of section 525, a jury is reduced to ten or nine members, subsection (2) shall be read with "eight" in place of "nine".

- (b) who, although qualified to serve as a juror, was not duly returned to serve as a juror under any provision of law for the time being having effect with respect to the selection and service of jurors at that particular trial,

- (b) if the accused person pleads any plea which raises an issue to be tried by a jury, the jury shall be charged in the first instance to inquire concerning the subsequent offence only;
- (c) if the accused person pleads guilty, or if upon his trial he is convicted of the subsequent offence, he shall then, and not before, be asked whether he had been previously convicted, as alleged in the indictment;
- (d) if the accused person admits that he has been so previously convicted, the Supreme Court may proceed to pass sentence upon him accordingly;
- (e) if the accused person denies that he has been so previously convicted, or will not answer directly to the question, the jury shall then be charged to inquire concerning the previous conviction or convictions; and in that case it is not necessary that the jury should be sworn afresh, but the oath already taken by them is deemed to extend to such last mentioned inquiry:

Provided that, if on the trial of a person charged with a subsequent offence, he offers evidence of his good character, the Crown may, in answer thereto, and before any verdict is given, offer evidence of his conviction of the previous offence or offences; and in that case the jury are required to inquire concerning the previous conviction or convictions at the same time that they inquire concerning the subsequent offence.
